TSTF - To Save The First

If the universe dies in the cold, does the warmth of my heart still matter?
If my tears have no weight to hold, the first tears I had shed will die in the past.

If the space between the planets grows larger,
Will you see me from afar?
A burning star.

I asked fifty people what the difference would be between a rock and a human,
and no one gave an answer that satisfied me.

An electron and a proton,
which will become within me - burst,
But I have something that came first.

If a person is sick, this person creates a cure
and the medicine is named after a person's fear, and the medicine hears the person's fear,
and fears the same

If the universe is doomed to die in the cold,
Is the warmth of your heart the cure?
Will we become the stars that created us, pure?

To save the first tears, because they matter
To save the first warmth of your heart
To Save The First.